Financial Planning:

Financial planning is important when your child has a disability or special health care needs. Caregivers want to make sure that their young adult has the highest quality of life. Keeping their benefits is essential. Special needs planning focuses on financial planning for the caregiver, the young adult, and when the caregiver can no longer provide on-going care.

Think about applying for an ABLE Account. An ABLE account is a savings account that allows someone with a disability to save money without effect on eligibility for certain government benefits.
